PRESS RELEASE

Bucharest, April 6, 2022

The Bucharest University of Economic Studies maintains its position as the leading Romanian university in the field of Economics and Econometrics, according to QS World University Rankings by Subject 2022.

The Bucharest University of Economic Studies climbs to the 351- 400th place in the world and maintains its leading position in Romania in the field of Economics and Econometrics, according to the prestigious QS World University Rankings by Subject 2022, published on Wednesday, April 6, 2022, on the very day that ASE celebrates its 109th Anniversary.

According to the same ranking, ASE maintains its positioning on the 501-550th place at international level and on the 2nd place in Romania in the field of Business and Management.

QS World University Rankings is one of the leading international university rankings by subjects. The 2022 edition of the QS World University Rankings by Subject comprises 1543 universities and 51 subjects, grouped in five main fields. Higher education institutions are ranked on the basis of the following components: Academic reputation, Employer reputation, Research citations per paper, H-index, International Research Network (by broad-faculty area).

Today, April 6, 2022, the Bucharest University of Economic Studies is celebrating its 109th Anniversary. The University's positioning in this international ranking contributes to the validation of its academic reputation, of the quality of the activities undertaken by its academic staff, students and graduates, as well as of the results obtained in top-level research.

With a tradition lasting for 109 years, ASE is the leader of economic and public administration higher education in Romania and South-Eastern Europe, with an outstanding international reputation, materialized in numerous international partnerships and its remarkable positioning in leading international university rankings. The Bucharest University of Economic Studies is a dynamic university, permanently adapting to the demands of the market economy, with a close liaison with the business environment and constantly offering new opportunities to its students.
