

Distinguished members of our academic community!

We welcome the 2023-2024 academic year fully aware of both the rapid and profound changes affecting the entire society, and of our academic community's assets - the quality of our teaching and research staff, the performance potential of our students, the constant attractiveness of our study programs, the diversity and contagion effects of our partnerships with the most valuable universities in the country and abroad, the University's recognition by the business environment, as well as the constantly modernized education infrastructure.

We are confident that together we can fully capitalize on these assets; hence, we begin this 111th year of existence of our university, with optimism and determination to preserve tradition, take on the challenges of modernity, proactively find the best solutions to arising issues. In the adoption of important decisions for ASE, we will continue to rely on the constructive proposals of the members of our academic community, to whom we thank in advance for this precious support.

We wish you a new academic year in good health, full of personal and professional accomplishments, and the attainment of the strategic objectives of the Bucharest University of Economic Studies!
